

CLINICAL "SNIPPETS"

Virtual reality enhanced mannequin (VREM) that is well received by resuscitation experts.

Semeraro F, Frisoli A, Bergamasco M, Cerchiari EL.
Department of Anaesthesia and Intensive Care, Ospedale Maggiore, Bologna, Italy.

Resuscitation. 2009 Feb 7. [Epub ahead of print]

Overview: This study tested the acceptance of, and interest in, a newly developed prototype of virtual reality enhanced mannequin (VREM) on a sample of congress attendees.

Conclusions: The prototype of the virtual reality enhanced mannequin was well-liked, without interference by interaction devices, and deserves full technological development and validation in emergency medical training.